PERSONA REPRESENTED: Jane Chopra MAIN GOAL OF THIS PARTICULAR JOURNEY: To successfully separate joint assets, agree on child support payments and divorce from partner

Relationship Breakdown	Information Gathering		Decision Making			Resolution
Jane and her partner decide to separate. They remain living in their marital home for the following 8 months.		Jane takes the Online version of the FLIP, and becomes more familiar with the legal system. She learns about the alternative methods of resolution, separation agreements, and asset division.		Jane and her former partner discuss their options and opt for mediation as a method of resolution, and hire the lawyer who will also mediate their divorce process.		The former couple finalize their divorce successfully in an amicable fashion.
	Jane looks online for information regarding the divorce process. She searches for keywords such as 'separation and divorce'. She stumbles across Ontario.ca's Separation and Divorce page, an finds the Online FLIP.		Both parties turn to family and friends for advice, and are reffered to a lawyer who also offers mediation services.		Their lawyer drafts a separation agreement in order for the couple to equitably divide their assets and set their child support and custody conditions.
the separation? Can we	This is a lot of information to learn, but it seems to all be in one place.	What method of resolution should we opt for? How can we save the most money?	I think that we made the right decision		I hope that our relationship with our children can continue to be what it has always been. I hope that we can thrive financially despite our separation.
	Jane feels more optimistic as though she's taking steps in the right direction. However, the financial burden of separation is still making her feel anxious.	Jane is feeling lost as to which method of resolution her and her former parter should opt for.	Thankful that her friends and family are helping her determine what the best course of action is.		Jane feels free now that the process is over. Is thankful that her former partner was cooperative throughout the process.	Jane feels worried about the additional financial costs associated with living in separate homes
